

Is Your Data Secure?

Are you fully compliant with the data protection act?

According to a survey of European IT professionals, carried out by Ipswitch*, more than half of respondents (52 percent) stated that they're not ready for the new General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and more than a third (35 percent) admitted that they didn't know whether their IT policies and processes were up to scratch.

- The Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) has the power to fine businesses and government bodies up to £500,000 for serious breaches of the Data Protection Act. This includes the loss of unencrypted USB data storage drives that contains client data.
- The European Union will soon have the power to fine companies €100 million or 5% of their annual turnover if they are found to be in breach of the new General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). The forthcoming legislation compels anyone who holds data on EU Citizens to implement adequate security measures to protect data from loss or theft.

The Education sector that have fallen foul of the ICO.

- East Lincolnshire Council receives £80,000 fine for losing an unencrypted flash drive containing sensitive information about hundreds of children with special educational needs.
- Brighton and Sussex University Hospitals NHS Trust fined £325k after unencrypted hard drives with highly sensitive patient data were sold on eBay.
- The Phoenix Nursery School in Wolverhampton has fallen foul of the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) after an unencrypted backup tape containing sensitive data on pupils and parents was stolen from its offices.
